The Jamaican men's national ice hockey team is the national ice hockey team of Jamaica. The team is regulated by the Jamaican Olympic Ice Hockey Federation (JOIHF), and an associate member of the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF) since May 18, 2012. They are the first Caribbean nation to accomplish this designation. In order to compete in the Winter Olympics they must have full inclusion in the IIHF, which requires the nation to have at least one exhibition ice rink and a development program. The JOIHF U20 team is part of the development program and is a compliment to the men's national team. The JOIHF U20 team's head coach is former NHL player Graeme Townshend (Boston Bruins, NYI, Ottawa Senators).
